

THE TEXAS A&M UNIVERSITY SYSTEM

Ashley Inglehart, Ph.D.

Research Development Officer
The Texas A&M University System

Ashley is a Research Development Officer at The Texas A&M System Office of Research and has over a decade of experience working in higher education research settings. Following her bachelor's and master's degrees in philosophy from Virginia Commonwealth University and Virginia Tech, respectively, she obtained a Ph.D. from Indiana University in History & Philosophy of Science & Medicine.

After completing a Ph.D., she held positions as an NEH postdoc at Philadelphia's Consortium for the History of Science Technology & Medicine in Philadelphia and as a Visiting Research Professor at Florida State's College of Medicine. These experiences honed her abilities to collaborate effectively with multidisciplinary teams and foster relationships with various stakeholders and research teams.

Ashley returned to her hometown of College Station in 2022 as a Research Development Officer for Texas A&M with the Public Policy Research Institute. During this time, she contributed to developing proposal narratives, literature reviews, budgets, and appendices for complex multidisciplinary proposals. She worked there for over two years before moving to the System Office of Research in 2024.
